

The University of Otago Blues and Golds Awards Criteria

First awarded in 1908, The University of Otago Blues continue to be highly prized as a recognition of outstanding student sporting achievement.

Otago was the first New Zealand university to adopt the traditional English university Blues system, which began at Oxford and Cambridge universities with the awarding of a “Blue” to rowers and then, later, to other sportspeople. The name derived from the light blue colours worn by the Cambridge rowers and the dark blue hues of the Oxford crews taking part in their annual boat race on the Thames. Since 1908, we have added additional awards to not only celebrate sport, but also arts, culture and service.

Receiving an award at our Blues and Golds ceremony is the highest honour we can present students who have excelled in these areas.

All nominees must be an enrolled student of the University of Otago at the time of the awards and or selection. Achievements from August to August yearly.

The Awards

University of Otago ‘Blues’ Award

The Blues Awards for sporting excellence are a long standing tradition that have been awarded at the University of Otago since 1908 – these are the greatest accolade that can be awarded to those University of Otago students that excel in their chosen sporting field.

University of Otago ‘Golds’ Award

The Golds Awards are the highest accolade that the University of Otago can bestow on those University of Otago students involved in the cultural sphere. They reward excellence and exceptional achievement in the chosen artistic or cultural field. OUSA has awarded Golds Awards since 2002.

University of Otago ‘Sportsperson of the Year’ Award

University of Otago ‘Highly Commended Sportsperson of the Year’ Award

These awards recognise the high performance, service and example in their chosen field, including expressing the ideals of true sportsmanship.

University of Otago ‘Māori Sportsperson of the Year’ Award

This Taonga, first awarded in 2000, recognises the most outstanding Māori Sportsperson at the University of Otago. This person best represents Māori through his or her performances in top-level sport.

University of Otago 'Outstanding Contribution to Arts and Culture' Award

Recognises individuals, both University of Otago students and those who are not, who have made significant contributions to OUSA Clubs and Societies over a number of years. This may involve Administration, Coaching, Managing, Officiating and other contributions considered worthy by the Panel.

OUSA 'Silver Service' Award

OUSA awards a Silver Service Award to University of Otago students and members of its affiliated Clubs to recognise the exceptional contributions made by these people. This may involve Administration, Coaching, Managing, Officiating and other contributions considered worthy by the Panel.

OUSA 'Coach of the Year' Award

This award was introduced in 2013, to recognise the significant input and achievements of coaches in the community. This Award is available to any coach coaching an OUSA Affiliated Club or any University of Otago student coaching anywhere in the country.

OUSA 'Sports Club of the Year' Award

Recognising excellence in the management, administration and promotion from an OUSA Affiliated Sports Club. Providing positive community awareness and engagement.

OUSA 'Society of the Year' Award

Recognising excellence in the management, administration and promotion of any OUSA Affiliated Society. Providing positive community awareness and engagement.

OUSA 'Cultural Society of the Year' Award

Recognises excellence in the management, administration and promotion of any OUSA Affiliated Cultural Club or Society. Providing positive community awareness and engagement. This award is for International Cultural Clubs only.

'Outstanding Member of the Dunedin Community' Award

Do you know a student with an altruistic spirit who has given back to the Dunedin community during their time in Dunedin? A student who has shown exemplary leadership skills in a community project?

'Outstanding Member of the University Community' Award

Do you know a student who has been an integral part of our university and deserves recognition? Have they shown impressive leadership skills to benefit the student or university community? Alternatively, have they been an exceptional volunteer at university or OUSA events.
